Isiah Thomas

Isiah Thomas was inspired by his mother's work to improve the lives of women and families and in 2010, founded the Mary's Court Foundation. The Foundation strives to create a model for schools and communities that inspires academic success, promotes good health, and encourages housing and economic development.

Isiah Thomas has garnered worldwide attention for his contributions to all levels of professional basketball, including induction into the NBA Hall of Fame. His leadership helped guide the Detroit Pistons to back to back championships in 1989 and 1990.
